*Quote from CSK Catamaran website:

The early 1960's were truly the dawn of the multihull era. The firm was fortunate in attracting the interest of many conventional yachtsmen who, in defiance of the rigid, stodgy tradition of conventional yachting, were intrigued enough in the raw performance of the early cats to pioneer a new generation of race boat. Men such as Ken Murphy, Jack Swart, Dr. Jack Pursell, and James Arness (Marshall Dillon of T.V.'s GUNSMOKE) sparked the competitive spirit and creative energies of the partnership, leading to a series of ocean racers that dominated West Coast racing for decades. Even the 35' length-overall POLYNESIAN CONCEPT, built for Buddy Ebsen of BEVERLY HILLBILLIES fame was capable of high performance, capturing First-Corrected time in the ORCA (Ocean Racing Catamaran Association) 1968 Transpac, finishing second only to the C/S/K designed SEASMOKE, a 54-footer.
